

LG 2016 PRODUCTS UNVEILED AT CES
AVAILABLE FOR SALE TO U.S. CONSUMERS TODAY

For First Time Ever, Consumers Can Pre-Order Selected Home Entertainment Products Through Participating Online Retailers

LAS VEGAS, Jan. 6, 2016 — LG Electronics USA announced today that for the first time ever, brand new home entertainment products unveiled at CES® are for sale to consumers, even before they officially rollout at retail stores.

Five of the most advanced new products introduced today CES 2016 are available for pre-order through Amazon.com and other participating online retailers. Consumers can visit LG.com to see available products for pre-order.

“CES is the most anticipated consumer technology show of the year, and it’s the launchpad for our latest and greatest products,” said David VanderWaal, vice president of marketing, LG Electronics USA. “This year, we’re bringing that excitement directly to consumers who can buy some of these amazing products before they even hit store shelves.”

LG Home Entertainment products included in this momentous pre-sale include:

- LG OLED TV: LG OLED is an entirely new category of television that uses a revolutionary technology to deliver exceptional picture quality with perfect blacks and incredible color, even from wide viewing angles. LG's 2016 OLED models will feature 4K Ultra HD and an unrivaled HDR experience with images that look more real, with more perceived depth as well as crisp, vibrant color. The lineup is expected to meet the new UHDA "Ultra HD Premium" HDR certification and will also feature Dolby Vision™ HDR technology, making them the first to be compatible with both formats. The E6 series displays the stunning picture quality of OLED on an elegant, stunningly slim glass panel. This unique Picture-On-Glass design measures just 2.57 millimeters (one-tenth of an inch), with a translucent glass back and powerful speaker system. Available for pre-order is the all-new 65-inch (64.5 inches measured diagonally) LG OLED E6.
